

Time to help others

WHILE 100 businesses have been busy collecting donations for the Quest Newspapers Foodbank Queensland campaign, others have given their time at its Colmslie warehouse.

Several businesses chose to visit the charity to lend a hand in processing deliveries.

Among them were staff from campaign partner Retail First shopping centres, and All Purpose Transport general manager Paul Kahlert.

Retail First group marketing manager Rebecca Gascoigne said six staff gave their time in order to help and also understand more about the charity.

SUPPORT: The warehouse volunteers with (front) All Purpose Transport's Paul Kahlert and Retail First's Bec Gascoigne.

"Paul joined a team of Retail First marketing managers to help pack food boxes and have cartons ready for charities to collect," Ms Gascoigne said.

"It was a busy place with food coming in and out, forklifts, trucks and volunteers, but it was so well organised and like an efficient machine.

"We were lucky to meet some of the charity representatives and hear what they do and how Foodbank benefits them."

➔ Donations of non-perishable grocery items can be placed into the metal cages outside supermarkets at Capalaba Park Shopping Centre or the office of Federal Member for Bonner, Ross Vasta, at 69 Clara St